

A little about the speaker of the class:

Bulat Alfredovich Khanov was born on June 11, 1991 in Kazan. He graduated from Kazan Federal University in 2013 with a degree in Philology, Russian language and literature in interethnic communication. At one time worked as a teacher of Russian language and literature in a secondary school. In 2016, he defended his PhD thesis on "Soviet discourse in contemporary Russian prose."

He has published in the journals "Druzhba Narodov" and "Oktyabr", and in the online publications "Литература" and "Textura".

In 2018 Bulat Alfredovich won the Lyceum Award in the nominations "Prose" and "Star Ticket".

In 2019 he won the "Contemporary Prose" category of the national prize for young authors, organized by the Roskulttsentr Federal State Budgetary Institution.

In 2019, Eksmo Publishers published B. A. Khanov's "Rage".

In 2019, Hanov's short story "Hugo" was included in the short story collection "Bird's Market". In the same year, the novel "Impermanent Magnitudes," which was short-listed for the National Bestseller Prize, was released.

In the year 2020 the world of literature saw the release of the novel, "Entertainment for Birds with Clipped Wings". In the same year, Znamya magazine published Khanov's story "When Light Fills Everything".